

Text describing the preparation of the stamp design, mentioning the use of a specific printing process and the importance of the design's clarity and detail.

Text discussing the technical aspects of the stamp design, such as the choice of colors and the use of different printing techniques to achieve the desired effect.

Text mentioning the collaboration between the design team and the printing house to ensure the final product meets the highest standards.

Text detailing the final stages of the stamp design process, including the creation of the printing plates and the final proofing stage.

Text providing information about the stamp's value and its intended use, as well as the date of its release.

Text describing the historical significance of the stamp's design, which commemorates the 100th anniversary of the Czech Republic's independence.

Text discussing the artistic value of the stamp design and its contribution to the overall aesthetic of the postage stamp collection.

Text providing contact information for the postal authority and the printing house, as well as any other relevant details.

Text describing the design of the stamp's cancellation mark, which is a key feature for postal identification.

Text describing the design of the stamp's perforations, which are essential for easy removal from the sheet.

Text describing the design of the stamp's cancellation mark, which is a key feature for postal identification.

Text describing the design of the stamp's cancellation mark, which is a key feature for postal identification.

Text describing the design of the stamp's cancellation mark, which is a key feature for postal identification.

Text providing information about the stamp's value and its intended use, as well as the date of its release.